

 My little brother must be from another planet. First of all, he doesn't sit down and chew his food like us earthlings. He inhales his food as he passes by the table. He also has been known to give off some peculiar odors, which collect from socks and dirty t-shirts. If that is not enough, he makes very odd sounds that seem to be a kind of screeching language from his native planet. So, it is clear that my brother is not an earthling at all. I wonder if my parents have figured this out?
